Origin	Bahia, Brazil

Calacatta Macaubas is a Brazilian quartzite sold by MSI, quarried in the Bahia region of Brazil and prized for its soft white background swept with smoky gray veins that recall classic Italian Calacatta marble. Unlike that marble, it is a true quartzite, formed when a quartz-rich sandstone recrystallized under heat and pressure into a stone harder than granite and far more resistant to scratching and etching. The name borrows 'Calacatta' for its marble-like white-and-gray look while 'Macaubas' ties it to Brazil's Macaúbas quartzite district.

CARE & INSTALLATION

Clean with warm water and a stone-safe cleaner; wipe spills promptly and use trivets. Sealing needs depend on the selected stone and its use; confirm the care schedule with us. Slab movement and tone vary from swatches. Confirm the actual slab, finish and thickness before fabrication.
